

HeraldTimesOnline.com

Horsing around

By Brady Gillihan

October 29, 2007

349-1420 | bgillihan@heraldt.com

Fern Bonchek, executive director of PALS, said the seventh annual PALS Fun Show Saturday was a celebration of the riders' accomplishments. "Everybody gets a trophy and everybody gets a ribbon," Bonchek said. "It's a chance for everyone to showcase what they've learned, regardless of their level."

Bonchek said PALS also handed out two 'volunteer of the year awards' at the event. PALS works with approximately 65 riders with disabilities every week and operates with the help of more than 150 volunteers.

Tony Keyt shoots a basket from a horse Saturday as Laura Anderson and Kara Lasher, right, watch during the People & Animal Learning Services fun show.

Jeremy Hogan | Herald-Times

» buy this photo

Cooper Holmes watches his sister, Libbie, ride a horse during the People & Animal Learning Services' fun show Saturday.

Jeremy Hogan | Herald-Times

» buy this photo

© 1997 - 2007 Hoosiertimes Inc.

No commercial reproduction without written consent.

Electronic reproduction of any kind forbidden without written consent.